LSU ROOTS: Both Alabama head coach Jim Wells and first-year Ole Miss head coach Mike Bianco's coaching roots can be traced back to legendary LSU head coach Skip Bertman. Wells served as a graduate assistant coach under Bertman at LSU from 1987-90 before serving as the head coach at Northwestern (La.) State from 1990-94 and then moving on to Alabama. Bianco played at LSU during the 1988 and 1989 seasons, while Wells was coaching at LSU, and then spent two years under Wells as a graduate assistant at Northwestern (La.) State in 1991 and 1992. Bianco then rejoined Bertman as an assistant coach at LSU from 1993-97 before taking the head coaching position at McNeese State (1998-2000). Former Wells assistant Todd Butler moved from Alabama to McNeese State this past summer to replace Bianco after he accepted the Ole Miss head coaching job. Bianco was also a Bertman assistant at LSU when the Tigers defeated Wells' Crimson Tide, 13-6, in the title game of the 1997 College World Series.
